Romal Tune sits down with seventeen men of diverse ages, ethnicities, and socioeconomic backgrounds, including his own son, Jordan, for "I Wish My Dad" conversations. Through their stories, he invites us to experience what honest, healing conversations between fathers and sons look like. Tune also offers us strategies for initiating our own "I Wish My Dad" conversations. The lessons in these pages will free us to have—and become—the kind of dad we wish for.

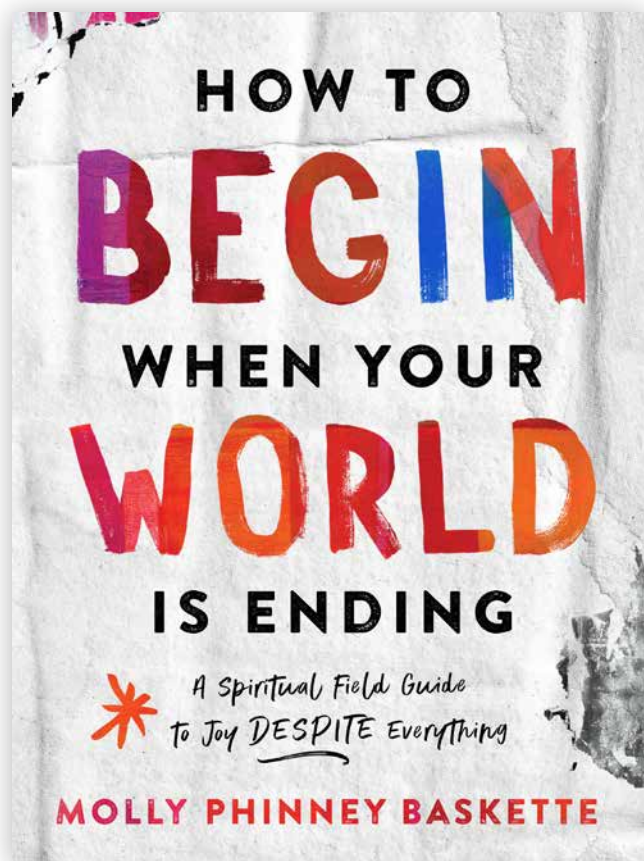

ROMAL TUNE is a speaker, author, and social entrepreneur. He serves as a vice president at TMS Global and is the founder of ClereStory Education, a nonprofit that offers workshops and coaching about mental health. Tune is a graduate of Howard University and Duke Divinity School and has spoken internationally at conferences addressing topics of inner healing, thriving, and the importance of mental health. He is the author of God's Graffiti and Love Is an Inside Job. He has two children and lives in Atlanta, Georgia.

In her witty and thoughtful way, Molly Phinney Baskette tosses aside the blueprint many of us cling to and pointedly asks us to explore our assumptions about our faith, our life, and our purpose. Weaving together her cancer experience and the stories of the doomsday disasters and everyday calamities of those she has encountered in her life of faith, Baskette helps us press a thumb against the bruise of the reality that none of us will make it through this life unscathed. In doing so, she helps us find hope, banish fear, and find our way back from despair.

MOLLY PHINNEY BASKETTE is an author, progressive Christian pastor, mama, cancer survivor, and doomsday Pollyanna. She lives in Alameda, California, with her husband and two children. You may spot her in the beautiful Bay Area bad-dance-jogging, or marching in the streets, depending on the day.

In Chingona, Mexicana activist Alma Zaragoza-Petty helps us claim our inner chingona, a Spanish term for “badass woman.” For all the brown women the world has tried to conquer, badassery can be an asset, especially when we face personal and collective trauma. Unleashing our inner chingona will help us imagine a just and healed world from the inside out.

ALMA ZARAGOZA-PETTY, PHD, is a Mexicana social justice advocate and scholar who teaches equity to create change. Born in Los Angeles but raised in Acapulco, Mexico, for much of her childhood, she is the daughter of immigrant parents and a first-generation high school and college graduate. Zaragoza-Petty has a master's degree in counseling and a doctorate in education and has worked in higher education for more than twenty years. She is co-founder of Prickly Pear Collective, a trauma-informed, faith-based community organization, and cohost of The Red Couch podcast with her partner, hip-hop artist Propaganda.

With her powerful and pastoral voice, Rev. Aurelia Dávila Pratt gives us the compassionate nudge and tools we need to access our inner authority. By stepping out of harmful belief systems informed by white supremacy and scarcity, we can step into healthy paradigms of abundance, liberation, and power. A Brown Girl's Epiphany is a love letter to anyone in need of guidance on their journey to self-liberation. The message is this: You already have all you need to step into the fullness of your power.

AURELIA DÁVILA PRATT is a pastor, writer, and sacred spacemaker who finds joy in helping people live into the fullness of their God-given Divine image. She is the lead pastor as well as a founder of Peace of Christ Church in Round Rock, Texas, and co-creator and cohost of the Nuance Tea podcast, where she is redefining what it means to be a clergywoman of color. She lives in Texas with her husband and young daughter.

In Between the Listening and the Telling, Mark Yaconelli helps us find and craft the stories worth telling: of repair, and justice, and truth, and empathy—leading us into an enchanting meditation on the power of storytelling in our individual and collective lives. With a foreword by Anne Lamott, this book offers an alloy of story, commentary, and contemplation. In an era of runaway loneliness, alienation, global crisis, and despair, sharing stories helps us make a home within ourselves and one another.

MARK YACONELLI is a speaker, facilitator, and author of five previous books. As founder and director of a storytelling nonprofit called The Hearth, Yaconelli has worked with the Lilly Endowment, Compassion International, and the Mexican American Cultural Center of Austin, among others. Profiles of Yaconelli's work have appeared in the Wall Street Journal, as well as on BBC Radio 4, NPR, and ABC World News Tonight. He and his wife have three adult children and live in Ashland, Oregon.

Travel is not merely a means to bring us from one location to another. For Diane Glancy the road is home—its own satisfying destination and the place where we become more familiar with ourselves. Glancy teases out the lessons of the road that are never easy to define, grappling with her own childhood's puzzle pieces of her Cherokee heritage and a fraught but still compelling vision of Christianity. As she clocks an inordinate amount of driving, as she experiments with literary forms, she looks to what the land has held for centuries, before the roads were ever there.

DIANE GLANCY is professor emerita at Macalester College in St. Paul, Minnesota, where she taught creative writing and Native American literature. Currently she teaches creative nonfiction in the MFA low-residency program at Carlow University. Among her works are Pushing the Bear: A Novel of the Trail of Tears and Stone Heart: A Novel of Sacajawea. Glancy has won multiple honors and awards for her work, including the Five Civilized Tribes Playwriting Laureate Prize and the Pablo Neruda Prize for Poetry, as well as being awarded grants from, among others, the National Endowment for the Arts.

Once a week Adrian Dannhauser stands outside her church with a sign that reads "Ask me for a blessing." What is a blessing? Do you have to believe to receive one? Dannhauser offers glimpses into the tender, holy, and funny moments she has with people looking for a blessing and delves into the power that ancient ideas hold in a disenchanted world.

ADRIAN DANNHAUSER, priest in charge at Church of the Incarnation in Manhattan, has been featured and quoted in the New York Times, BBC, and Religion News Service. She chairs the Episcopal Diocese of New York Task Force Against Human Trafficking. Before entering ordained ministry, Dannhauser practiced corporate bankruptcy law. She holds a BA from Duke University, a JD from Vanderbilt University Law School, and an MDiv from Yale Divinity School. She and her husband, Jess, have one daughter.

Brandon Grafius finds common ground between two seemingly disparate bedfellows—horror and religion. What parallels can we draw between The Walking Dead and sacred texts? How do the stories of Hebrew Christian scriptures and apocalyptic films like A Quiet Place and Bird Box help us find hope when it's in short supply? When we treat them both seriously, we see that horror movies and religion lead us through the same sets of questions. Both explore questions of justice, hope, and our relationship to the world and the cosmos.

BRANDON R. GRAFIUS is associate professor of biblical studies at Ecumenical Theological Seminary in Detroit, where he teaches Old Testament and Hebrew. A film reviewer and columnist as well as a religion scholar, he is a frequent podcast guest often speaking about films, horror, and religion. His previous books include Reading the Bible with Horror, a Grawemeyer Award winner, and a handbook on the film The Witch. He lives in Mason, Michigan, with his wife and two children.

Through the lens of the wild mustang, Chad Hanson inspires us to look at how we interact with animals and our landscapes, our history, and ourselves. What is a wild animal? How do feelings of reverence reconnect us with nature? What can we learn from our wisdom traditions? And in the end, what would it look like if we managed public land with the common good in mind? With wisdom gathered from the histories of the American West, geography, philosophy, theology, and sociology, In a Land of Awe serves as a plea for what we stand to lose if we don't find the courage to protect the planet's most beautiful, and vulnerable, others.

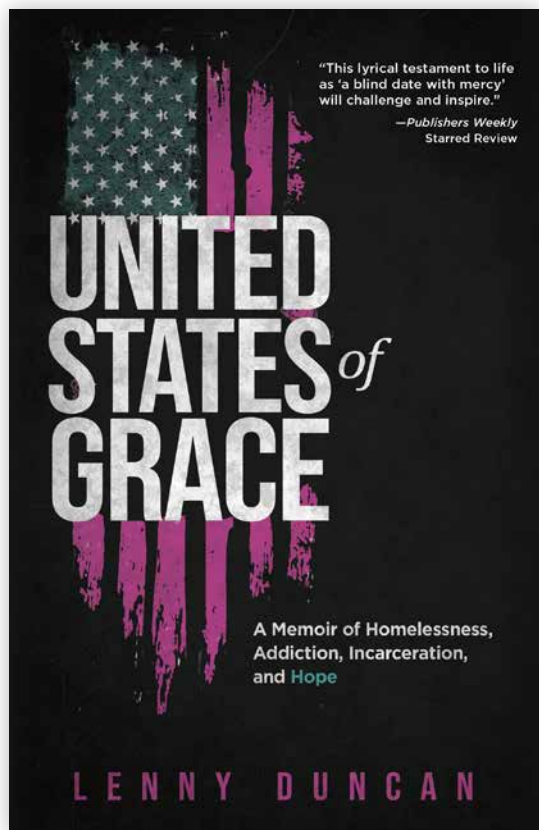

CHAD HANSON serves as a member of the faculty in Sociology and Religion at Casper College. He is co-founder of the Wyoming Mustang Institute, which works through research and advocacy to ensure healthy and stable wild horse populations on public land. Hanson is the author of several books, including Trout Streams of the Heart and This Human Shape. He divides his time between Casper, Wyoming, and the Red Feather Lakes region of Colorado.

Aggravated women disciples, Jesus hugging rainbow sheep, a man praying "WTF?": the cartoons of David Hayward, the artist behind @NakedPastor, are graffiti on the walls of the church. Upending notions of who's in and who's out, Hayward's comic vision will challenge and inspire those grappling with the realities of the church as we know it. These cartoons are for those who have been battered or infuriated by the church and who long to see it change.

DAVID HAYWARD, who draws and writes as @NakedPastor, reaches wide audiences with fanciful and hard-hitting cartoons about spiritual abuse, the church's exclusion of LGBTQ+ people, feminism, and faith and doubt. With degrees from Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary and McGill University in Montreal,

Hayward served as a pastor for most of his career, but in 2010 he left the professional paid clergy to pursue his passion for spirituality, community, and art. His cartoons and artwork have found their way all around the world. David and his wife live near Saint John, New Brunswick.

Every day, the lines between digital and “real” space blur even further. Chris Stedman offers a new way of seeing the supposed split between our online and offline selves, one in which online spaces and social media become new tools for understanding and expressing ourselves. How might the online spaces we use fulfill our essential human need to feel real? Must we view the internet and the “real world” as binary, where there is no room for overlap? Playful and wise, Stedman suggests that the digital search for meaning and belonging presents challenges but also opportunities to become more fully human.

CHRIS STEDMAN is a writer, activist, and professor who currently teaches in the Department of Religion and Philosophy at Augsburg University. He is the creator and host of Unread, named one of the best podcasts of 2021 by Mashable and Vulture. Additionally, Stedman is the author of Faithist and has written for outlets including The Guardian, The Atlantic, Pitchfork, BuzzFeed, VICE, and The Washington Post. Previously the founding director of the Yale Humanist Community, he also served as a humanist chaplain at Harvard University. Stedman lives in Minneapolis, Minnesota, and spends a lot of time online.

The Lightmaker's Manifesto

How to Change the World without Losing Your Joy

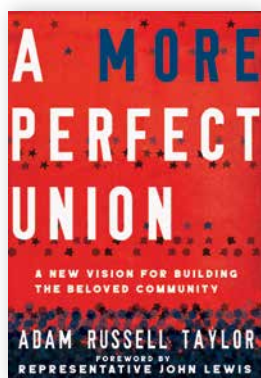

KAREN WALROND

Joy and gratitude are the most important practices to cultivate in order to establish longevity in our marches toward justice.

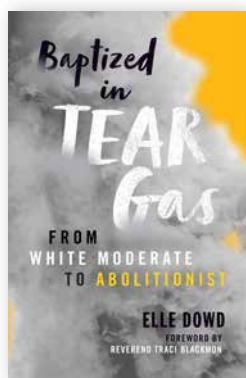

Many of us want to advocate for causes we care about—but which ones? We want to work for change—but will the emotional toll lead to burnout? Karen Walrond shares strategies to help you define the actions that bring you joy, identify the values and causes about which you are passionate, and put them together to create change.

Women in the Bible aren't shy or retiring; they're fierce and brave and funny and demanding and relevant to 21st-century people.

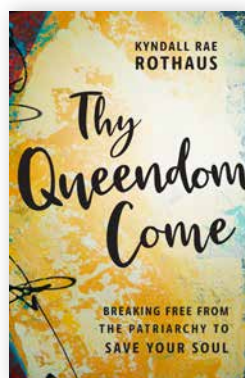

Pastor and provocateur Alice Connor introduces these women and invites us to see them not as players in a man's story—as victims or tempters—nor as morality archetypes, teaching us to be better wives and mothers, but as brave and fierce foremothers of the faith.

Breath Prayer

An Ancient Practice for the Everyday Sacred

CHRISTINE VALTERS PAINTNER

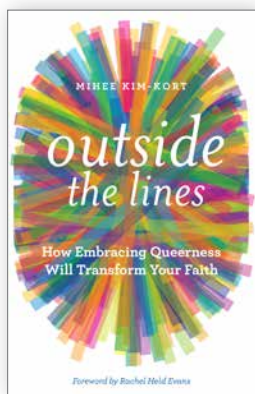

I breathe in creation's goodness,

I breathe out love.

I am called to my part in the grand unfolding.

Christine Valters Paintner, abbess of Abbey of the Arts, introduces us to the spiritual practice of breath prayer and offers beautiful poem-prayers for walking, working, dressing, cleaning, sitting in silence, doing the dishes, living in community—breathing the divine into our daily lives.

The Prophetic Lens

The Camera and Black Moral Agency from MLK to Darnella Frazier

PHIL ALLEN JR.

The Prophetic Lens takes an important look at the use of the video camera as an indispensable prophetic tool for the security of Black lives and greater possibility for racial justice. The book highlights both the prophetic potential of the camera and the context of Blackness as a liminal existence amid a context dominated by whiteness.

The Arc of Truth

The Thinking of Martin Luther King Jr.

LEWIS V. BALDWIN

We know about Martin Luther King Jr.'s contributions as a preacher, pastor, civil rights leader, and world figure. However, he was also an equally impactful theologian, philosopher, and ethicist whose life and thought evince an enduring search for and commitment to truth.

Our Unforming

De-Westernizing Spiritual Formation

CINDY S. LEE

Cindy S. Lee proposes that the church needs to reimagine spiritual formation—to unform the ways Western-dominated church leaders have understood formation and to create a more robust spirituality, one that will hold the complexities of a multicultural God and the God-human relationship.
