A detailed illustration of three apricots hanging from a branch with several green leaves. The apricots are a warm orange-red color with soft shading to indicate their round shape and texture. The leaves are a vibrant green with visible veins. The entire scene is set against a teal background with a repeating pattern of small, intricate floral or geometric motifs.

Trauma surgeon Dr. Brian H. Williams has seen it all, from gunshot wounds to traumatic brain injuries. In The Bodies Keep Coming, Williams ushers us into the trauma bay, where the wounds of a national emergency amass. Working in the physician-writer tradition of Atul Gawande and Damon Tweedy, Williams diagnoses the roots of the violence that plagues us. Black bodies will continue to be wracked by violence, racism, and healthcare inequities until we enact changes of policy and law.

DR. BRIAN H. WILLIAMS is an Air Force Academy graduate, a Harvard-trained surgeon, a former congressional staffer, and a nationally recognized leader at the intersection of public policy and structural racism, gun violence, and health equity. He has treated gun violence victims for more than two decades. Williams has served as a Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Health Policy Fellow at the National Academy of Medicine and as a professor of trauma and acute care surgery at the University of Chicago Medicine. Williams and his work have been featured in outlets like the Chicago Tribune, Dallas Morning News, CNN, and Newsweek.

BIO028000 BIOGRAPHY & AUTOBIOGRAPHY / Cultural, Ethnic & Regional / Indigenous

Native America has confronted apocalypse for more than four hundred years. Yet Choctaw elder Steven Charleston's ancestors are a case study in the liberating and hopeful survival of a spiritual community. How did Indigenous communities achieve the miracle of their own survival and live to tell the tale? What strategies did America's Indigenous people rely on that may help us to endure an apocalypse—or perhaps even prevent one from happening? In telling the stories of four Indigenous prophets who helped their people learn strategies for surviving catastrophe, Charleston offers their lessons and wisdom as guidance for how we can face the uncertainty of the modern age.

STEVEN CHARLESTON is a leading voice of justice for Indigenous peoples, the environment, and spiritual renewal. A member of the Choctaw Nation, Charleston has appeared on ABC World News Tonight, BBC World News, and other outlets.

The author of more than a dozen books on theology and spirituality, including Ladder to the Light, Charleston has served as the Episcopal bishop of Alaska, president and dean of the Episcopal Divinity School, professor of systematic theology at Luther Seminary, and theologian in residence at Berkeley Divinity School at Yale University. Charleston lives with his wife, Susan, in Oklahoma.

Falsely convicted of murder and sentenced to life in prison, Lacino Hamilton sent thousands of letters advocating for his innocence and critiquing the prison-industrial complex before he was finally exonerated twenty-six years later. Collected here, his letters demonstrate why he has become a leading voice on abolition, incarceration, and justice. Tireless, empathetic, and unflinching, Hamilton's voice shines with immediacy. We must engage all people in recognizing the terrible costs of maintaining the US system of justice, he writes. In these letters, we sense something unexpected and profound: hope for a reimagining of our systems—a humanity-affirming model of justice.

LACINO HAMILTON is a writer, thinker, and activist who was incarcerated for twenty-six years due to a wrongful conviction for which he was exonerated in September 2020. His essays on prison abolition have appeared in Truthout, The New Inquiry, PEN America, The Michigan Citizen, and the San Francisco Daily. He lives in Michigan.

As a twenty-three-year-old singer and the soon-to-be wife of youth pastor Joshua Harris, nothing in Shannon Harris's secular upbringing prepared her to enter the world of conservative Christianity. Soon Joshua's bestselling book I Kissed Dating Goodbye helped inspire a national purity movement, and Shannon Harris's identity became "pastor's wife." The Woman They Wanted recounts Harris's remarkable experience inside Big Church—where she was asked to live within a narrow definition of womanhood for almost two decades—and her subsequent journey out of that world and into a more authentic version of herself.

SHANNON HARRIS is a singer, actor, composer, and writer. She grew up involved in music and theatre—performing, singing, and writing until she met and married bestselling author Joshua Harris. Since her departure from conservative Christianity and the end of her marriage, she has reevaluated ideas society takes for granted about women and their contributions. Now Harris has returned to pursuing a career in the performing arts. She is currently writing a one-woman show and released her first album under the name Shannon Bonne. She lives in Vancouver, British Columbia.

Andrea Navedo didn't get to see many positive portrayals of Latinas in the media growing up. When she had the chance to play a starring role on Jane the Virgin, a role that cast her as a complex, flawed, and genuine Latina single mother, she jumped at the opportunity. Now, Navedo shares bits of her story of growing up to inspire young people who grew up like she did and who, after being counted out, still strive to succeed. In the face of hardship, trauma, discrimination, and inner doubts, Navedo's reflections, confessions, memories, and hard-earned lessons help us realize our "ghetto" is the breeding ground for our self-actualization.

ANDREA NAVEDO is a Bronx-born-and-raised Puerto Rican American actress best known for her role as Xiomara on The CW's series Jane the Virgin, for which she received critical acclaim.

She is dedicated to various charities, including A Place Called Home in South Central Los Angeles, and the Fresh Air Fund in New York City. Navedo has a passion for self-improvement, growth, and healing, and through her experiences seeks to help those who see themselves on the outside looking in. She and her family divide their time between their homes in Toronto and Connecticut.

From one of the most courageous and visionary leaders of our time comes Troubling the Water, an immersive book about the violence and injustice that threaten to drown us all. Activist Ben McBride recounts how he first waded into the water: from the Kill Zone in Oakland, where he moved with his young family, to the uprising in Ferguson, to the moral impoverishment of the white evangelical church. In the truth-telling tradition of Bryan Stevenson and Bishop William Barber, McBride leads us right into the fury and fragmentation of our moment, and then steadies us once we're there.

REV. BEN MCBRIDE is an internationally recognized faith leader, activist, and sought-after speaker who has spoken to large audiences in the US, Canada, the United Kingdom, and the Middle East. McBride is the founder of the Empower Initiative and the Bring the HEAT campaign, and he served as director of PICO California. McBride was featured in the Sundance Film Festival Award-winner The Force, and in 2020 the Center for American Progress listed him as one of the top faith leaders to watch. McBride lives in Oakland, California, with his wife, Gynelle, and their three daughters.

In rhythmic prowess, Kim Singleton recounts the beauty and legacy of Black people who are “too many to name, from the corners of obscurity, to the highest of fame.” In the vein of Gill Scott-Heron’s poetry of the 1970s, Singleton invites us into call-and-response and brings a refreshing cadence that captures every decade of Black joy in its resilient, diverse, and excellent splendor. Singleton shines a light on virtually every facet of Black community life, and unapologetically declares her people good—from the street corner to the White House and everything in between. By the end, you’ll be chanting Singleton’s anthem, too: “I LOVE MY PEOPLE!”

KIM SINGLETON is a filmmaker, writer, and poet. She earned a BS from Howard University and an MBA from NYU, Stern School of Business, forging a twenty-year career in media. Singleton’s love for the arts led her to study at Frederick Douglass Creative Arts Center, Gotham Writers Workshop, and African Voices Writers Workshop. Singleton is the executive producer and host of the online program Consider It Blacklit, winner of the Public Media Award of Excellence in 2018 and 2019. She is an active member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority and a former international president of the Howard University Alumni Association. Singleton lives in New York City.

Food and faith podcasters Derrick Weston and Anna Woofenden invite you into a kitchen where a passion for food, sharing meals, showing hospitality, and understanding cultures and local foodways collide. Answer the call of a just kitchen, where meal preparation is as much an act of resistance against injustice as are marches and protests.

DERRICK WESTON is an engaged community organizer in Baltimore, Maryland. He manages the Rockrose City Farm on Baltimore's east side, growing food for ministries that distribute to those who are food insecure. A documentary filmmaker, producer, and former Presbyterian minister, Derrick is a firm believer in using one's voice and the media to inspire and enact social change. He is cohost and producer of The Food and Faith Podcast along with coauthor Anna Woofenden and Rev. Sam Chamelin.

 @derricklweston

ANNA WOOFENDEN is the founding pastor of both The Garden Church and Feed and Be Fed Farm in San Pedro, California. As a leading voice in the food and faith movement, she is the founder and cohost of The Food and Faith Podcast and author of This Is God's Table: Finding Church beyond the Walls. She is passionate about spirituality, justice, food, the earth, beauty, compassion, and community. Now based in Northampton, Massachusetts, with her husband and daughter, she enjoys nature, gardening, singing, laughter, and a good cup of chai.

David Dark presents We Become What We Normalize, both a cultural critique and a robust summons to resist complicity when it comes to conversations on politics, religion, and media. "I suspect we become what we sit still for, what we play along with, and what we abide in our attempts to access more perceived power and more alleged influence," Dark writes. Dark calls for a new kind of struggle, ethic, witness, and spirit that helps us step away from the infinite loop of normalizing harm into effecting true change for ourselves and the worlds we inhabit.

DAVID DARK is an American writer and public intellectual. A frequent speaker and podcast guest, he is the author of several books, including The Sacredness of Questioning Everything; Everyday Apocalypse: The Sacred Revealed in Radiohead, The Simpsons, and Other Pop Culture Icons; and The Possibility of America.

His writing has appeared in Pitchfork, Paste, America magazine, The Christian Century, and Religion News Service. Dark teaches in incarcerated communities and at Belmont University. He lives in Nashville, Tennessee, with his wife, singer-songwriter Sarah Masen.

The Bible is full of monsters: giants, vengeful spirits, and more. If you read closely, you'll see these monsters aren't God's opponents—they are God's entourage. Confronting God's monsters—and the God-monster—may be uncomfortable, but the Bible is richer for their presence. The biblical writers' unflinching depictions of the monstrous God create space for our own grief, anger, dissatisfaction, and protest. God's Monsters invites us to wrestle honestly and rigorously with the monstrosity of the biblical God, perhaps to discover that if those in God's entourage can be held accountable, so too can God.

ESTHER HAMORI teaches the popular class “Monster Heaven” at Union Theological Seminary in New York, where she also is a professor of Hebrew Bible. Specializing in biblical concepts of divine-human contact, and a lifelong devotee of all that is eerie, she is the author of Women's Accidental injury is the leading cause of death for Americans under forty-five. Those who have caused accidents walk among us. They are us. Author, veteran, and Episcopal priest David W. Peters offers solace, healing, and companionship for those who have caused an accidental death or injury, sharing his own story of unintentionally killing someone in a traffic accident. Rooted in research on moral injury, religious rituals of confession and cleansing, and psychology, Accidental explores the complicated reality of accidental death and injury and offers companionship to those affected by these tragedies.

DAVID W. PETERS is the vicar of St. Joan of Arc Episcopal Church. He served as an enlisted Marine and Army chaplain, deploying to Baghdad, Iraq, in 2005–2006. Peters has degrees from Missio Seminary, Seminary of the Southwest, and Erskine Theological Seminary, and is the author of Post-Traumatic God, Post-Traumatic Jesus, and Death Letter. He has been featured on All Things Considered. He hosts the podcast Dear Padre and serves on the board of The Hyacinth Fellowship, a foundation of support for people who have killed accidentally. He and his family live in Pflugerville, Texas.

Church of the Wild

How Nature Invites Us into the Sacred

VICTORIA LOORZ

The natural world—that world where we already belong—is an alluring invitation into the sacred, into relationship with something larger.

Like many unfulfilled by traditional faith expressions, Victoria Loorz went in search of a spirituality strong enough to reckon with the unraveling of her vocation, identity, and planet, and found herself in the wilderness. Loorz invites us to reimagine our relationship with and commitment to a suffering planet by loving it—and calling it church.

In the Shelter Finding a Home in the World

PÁDRAIG Ó TUAMA

"To say that it is one of the most beautiful and quietly necessary books of our young century is a sweeping assertion, but I will make it. . . . An exquisite work of spiritual autobiography."

—from the foreword by Krista Tippett, creator and host of On Being

From master storyteller Pádraig Ó Tuama comes an unforgettable spiritual memoir of peace and reconciliation, Celtic spirituality, belonging, and sexual identity. From the heart of a poet comes a profound look at the landscapes we all try to inhabit even as we always search for shelter, a place we can call home.

Strength to Love

If there is one book Martin Luther King Jr. has written that people consistently tell me has changed their lives, it is Strength to Love.

—Coretta Scott King

Strength to Love is the most comprehensive, moving, must-read narrative from Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. addressing civil rights. These short, meditative pieces relay his commitment to justice and to the intellectual, moral, and spiritual conversion that makes his work as much a blueprint today for Christian discipleship as it was then.

Psalms

The Prayer Book of the Bible

DIETRICH BONHOEFFER

NEW INTRODUCTION BY WALTER BRUEGGEMANN

It does not depend on whether the Psalms express adequately that which we feel at a given moment in our heart. Perhaps it is quite necessary that we pray contrary to our own heart.

In 1940, just before the Nazis banned him from publishing, Dietrich Bonhoeffer published this book of reflections on the Psalms. Now with an introduction by Walter Brueggemann and excerpts from the Psalms, this classic reveals the Psalms as essential to the life of the believer and offers wisdom for living today.

Messy Minimalism

Realistic Strategies for the Rest of the Us

RACHELLE CRAWFORD

Think minimalism means a perfectly curated, always tidy home? Think again.

Drowning in clutter and a crazy schedule, Rachelle Crawford assumed you had to be naturally organized to be tidy. Then she found messy minimalism, which is less about perfection and more about purpose. With empathy and humor, Crawford lays out strategies for curbing consumption, decluttering, and finding lots more joy.

Becoming Rooted

One Hundred Days of Reconnecting with Sacred Earth

RANDY WOODLEY

*We are all indigenous to some place. We are all from somewhere.
We can all become rooted in the land that sustains us.*

Randy Woodley, an activist, scholar, and Cherokee descendant, guides us on a one-hundred-day journey to reconnect with the land around us, with the people native to that land, and with ourselves. Meditations, epigraphs, and ideas for reflection and action help us become rooted in our relationship with creation and Creator.

bell hooks' Spiritual Vision

Buddhist, Christian, and Feminist

NADRA NITTLE

Widely heralded as a leading feminist scholar, bell hooks also identified as a Buddhist Christian who believed that love was the antidote to oppression. In bell hooks' Spiritual Vision, Nadra Nittle traces the spirituality in hooks' writings. The book shows hooks as a feminist and a believer who knit together her political and spiritual practices.

American Heresy

The Roots and Reach of White Christian Nationalism

JOHN FANESTIL

American Heresy uncovers the complex legacy of America's founding principles, demonstrating how the very same values have produced both good fruit and the bitter harvest of white Christian nationalism. John Fanestil adeptly traces an early American story that reaches into our present with alarming immediacy.

Crucified

The Christian Invention of the Jewish Executioners of Jesus

J. CHRISTOPHER EDWARDS

The accusation that Jews executed Jesus is perhaps the most overlooked of all Christianity's troubling traditions. In this study, J. Christopher Edwards shines a light on this forgotten tradition in which Christians rewrite their history to blame Jews for the crucifixion of Jesus.

Picking Up the Pieces

Leadership after Empire

KATHLEEN MCSHANE AND ELAN BABCHUCK

Kathleen McShane and Elan Babchuck argue that empire-inspired leadership models hollow out faith institutions and exhaust their leaders. In Picking Up the Pieces, the authors offer a leadership model based on the conviction that power shared is power multiplied. The book offers a hopeful, practical, and sustainable way forward for all God's people.

Saving Faith

How American Christianity Can Reclaim Its Prophetic Voice

RANDALL BALMER

Few Americans would deny that Christianity in America is in crisis, its credibility diminished by everything from sex scandals to close identification with extremist politics. Saving Faith examines this crisis and argues that recovering a prophetic voice entails learning from history and listening to Jesus.
